One Man May Die as Result of Injuries Sustained in Collision.

Women in Panic as Crowded Cars Crash Into Each Other Near the L. Station.

Understanding of signals or neglect of them caused a serious collision between two trolleys cars at the Broadway street transfer station today. A number of persons were injured, one of them probably fatally. The most seriously injured are:

HECKLER, HENRY, forty-eight, No. 25 Armstrong street, Jamaica Plain, severe body injuries. Taken home to ambulance. The accident happened at the foot of the west trolley to the elevated station. Hundreds of people, waiting about the busy corner on their way to their day's employment, witnessed it, and many women were made ill by the shock to their nerves.

On surface cars heading southward with passengers on their way to work, coming from Jamaica Plain, the South Boston car, also crowded, was approaching from the opposite direction, headed toward Washington street.

CAR FAILED TO STOP. The Jamaica Plain car had to cross the westbound track to turn for the ascension of the incline, turning directly against the South Boston car. One of them had the right of way—this is the question the road are now trying to determine. The trolley failed to stop.

Just as the Jamaica Plain car had reached a position beyond the crossing, the South Boston car crashed into it. The impact splintered wood and flying glass, the heads of men passing by were struck, many of whom were on both cars. The South Boston car, which was moving at a rapid pace, was thrown into the air, and the passengers, many of them women, were hurled about. The collision occurred at the foot of the incline, where the trolley was about to start its ascent.

LEFT ALMOST HELPLESS. Henry Heckler, forty-eight years old, also married, who lives at No. 25 Armstrong street, Jamaica Plain, was sitting in a seat opposite the point of contact. The crash in which he was involved, between the South Boston car and the Jamaica Plain car, was so sudden and so violent that he was almost helpless.

Many others were less seriously hurt. The South Boston car, which was moving at a rapid pace, was thrown into the air, and the passengers, many of them women, were hurled about. The collision occurred at the foot of the incline, where the trolley was about to start its ascent.

FOUND BETWEEN SEATS. Dr. E. G. Morse of No. 10 Warren street, was summoned and immediately cared for those most hurt. When the cars stopped, Parkhurst and Heckler were lying between the seats in the South Boston car. They were carried to the City Hospital.

Another passenger, whose name was not ascertained, also was injured. He was referred to the government bill looking for a settlement with Sweden. From the fact that many of these people are believed to be injured, it is probable that the bill will be passed.

Followers of the Christian Science Leader Are Mystified by Her Order.

MR. FARLOW NON-PLUSED

Although they willingly and humbly obey her instructions, the members of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, are as much at sea as the rest of the world regarding the meaning of the order issued by Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy that her followers cease their special prayer for the peace of nations.

Alfred Farlow, Mrs. Eddy's representative in Boston and the immediate superior of the church, said that he was not at all mystified by the order. He believed that the church should continue its work as usual, and that the order was a mistake.

HEARD OF ISRAEL, THE LORD. I now repeat that the members of the church should continue their work as usual, and that the order was a mistake. The church should not be divided, and the members should continue to follow the teachings of the church.
